

"RAINMAKER" CAST—Taking a break from rehearsals for the Starkville Community Theater's production of "The Rainmaker" were these members of the cast (seated, from left) Raggy Ragsdale (as Noah Curry), Katharine Conroy (Lizzie Curry), Gary Jackson (Jim Curry); and (standing, from left) assistant director Margaret Anderson, John Sullivan (sheriff), Bob Wolverton (H.C. Curry), and Larry Myers (File). Not

pictured is Howard Lee as the con-artist Starbuck. The play will be staged February 12, 13, and 14 at the Ag Center on Highway 25. Tickets may be purchased at the door or by mailing ticket orders to P.O. Box 1254, Starkville. Information on ticket prices may be obtained from Mary Eleanor Anderson, SCT president, at 323-3259.

(Staff photo—Carley)

SCT Sets Work Day For Set Construction

A work day to construct the set for the Starkville Community Theatre's February 12-14 production of "The Rainmaker" will be held Saturday afternoon at the Ag Center on Highway 25 south.

This production will be staged in the new location because the former site cannot be heated. David Cook, technical director for the play, invited anyone interested to join the work crew from 2:00 to 4:30 p.m.

"We are having something new for the SCT on this production—three sets which will revolve on the stage as the scenes change," Cook said.

The stage was moved and rebuilt at the Ag Center last week. Set construction will probably take a couple of work sessions, Cook said.

Workers are asked to bring a hammer and saw to the Saturday afternoon session if possible.